The New Discovery of the Cause of Consumption.

The cable dispatch of a few days ago which announced the communication by Prof. Tyndall of the wonderful discovery of the cause of consumption by Dr. Koch of Berlin, as reported by him to the Imperial Council of Health of Berlin March 24th, though but a few lines in length, announced the most remarkable event which has occurred in our decade. Medical men have long suspected that consumption was a communicable, that is in a sense, a contagious disease, but the absolute proof of this view has only been furnished by the discovery of the act a' cause of the disease by Dr. Koch, of Berlin.

This cause of tuberculosis turns out to be a parasite, a minute colorless living particle, which its discoverer names the bacillus tuberculosis. It will be a source of wonder to many of our readers why, with all the research which has been expended upon this disease for years—a disease that kills from one to two-sevenths of mankind—the cause of it was not discovered long ago. The reasons of it is simply this: The parasites, germs, or, technically speaking, the bacilli, of the disease are colorless, and hence could not be distinguished from the media in which they lived. Dr. Koch has found out the means of tinting the bacilli so as to make them visible, and has thus put within the reach of every microscopist the means of detecting them in any organ or secretion of the body. The coloring substances he used were methylene blue and vesuvium. The mythylene preparation colors the whole preparation blue, and the vesuvium discharges the blue from every element of the preparation, imparting to them a brown tint, except the bacilli, which still retain the blue color. Of all the germs of disease there are but two which undergo this peculiar reaction, namely, those of leprosy and those of tuberculosis.

All other germs lose their blue color under the action of vesuvium. The bacilli of tuberculosis thus rendered visible are found to be small rod-like bodies with a length about one-third the diameter of the blood corpuscles, which are 1-3500th of an inch, and in breadth about one-sixth of their length. They are found in greatest abundance in fresh tuberculous masses, in the spectrum of the disease, in the walls of the cavities formed by it in the lungs, and in all the depots of tuberculosis in the body. The same bodies are found in the bodies of cattle in the so called "pearl disease," which has long been suspected to be the same disease as the tuberculosis of man.

Dr. Koch was not content with simply discovering these bodies. He also devised or worked out a preparation from gelatinized ox-blood in which he sowed the bacilli and watched them grow. He found in this observation that they thrived best at a temperature between 55 and 108 degrees Fahrenheit. The distinguished observer next subjected his new discovery to the crucial test, to wit: inoculation of the lower animals. He found that he could thus induce tuberculosis in any animal—even in those not naturally predisposed to it, or in those which naturally enjoy immunity against it, like dogs and rats. Thus he completed the chain of experimentation, and having verified his results by three months of patient work, he published it to the world.

The London Lancet of April 22d reports that even in the short time that has already elapsed since the announcement of this discovery, the results have been confirmed by Baumgartner, another almost equally distinguished investigator in the field of phthology, and at the present time microscopists all over the world are busy in the study of the bacilli of tuberculosis.

The report of this discovery is received with a sensation in medical circles, which is as much greater than that manifested over the trichina spiralis as tuberculosis is graver than trichinosis, as it not only discloses the cause of this dread disease but reveals a way in which the causes of other most accurately infectious disease may be found out. And though it does not show us as yet, at least, how the disease may be cured, it will show us how it may be prevented, as was the case in trichinosis. At any rate, the first step has been taken—and a giant stride it is—on the road to the mastery of a disease which kills more people than all the plagues and all the wars and all the famines put together. It is no wonder, therefore, that medical men look upon this discovery by Koch as the greatest revelation that has been made in the history of the discovery of the circulation of the blood by Harvey, over two hundred years ago.

RELEASED

After Forty Years of Convict Life—A Prisoner Made Famous by Charles Dickens Breathes the Fresh Air Once More.

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—Charles Langheimer walked out of the eastern penitentiary this morning at the close of his eighth term in Cherry Hill. He was first entered on May 15, 1840, just forty-two years ago, to five years' confinement for larceny, and it was while serving out this sentence that he was immortalized by Charles Dickens. When the distinguished writer arrived in Philadelphia and visited the eastern penitentiary and gave him a place in American Notes, Dickens saw the convict as he has been throughout life, an unmitigated hypocrite and rascal of forlorn appearance, and always ready to pour into the ears of an unsophisticated listener a frightful tale of woe and distress. Langheimer was naturally a thief. He had an excellent trade, that of paper staining, in which he could have earned a fine salary, for good men in that line were scarce, and Langheimer was an excellent stainer, but it was impossible for him to resist the temptation to steal.

At the time of his release Langheimer was in his seventy-ninth year. When he first entered the eastern penitentiary, forty-two years ago, he was number 1,274. Upon being consigned to the same institution to 1879 he was labelled 10,014. During the long period between the time Langheimer first entered the prison in 1840 until he left to-day, an army of 8,740 convicts have passed out of the institution. So far as a resident at Cherry Hill is concerned, he has outlived them all. His eight terms in the eastern penitentiary aggregate in time thus spent upwards of twenty-eight years.

In addition to his local career as a convict he has served terms in Sing Sing, the Maryland penitentiary and other prisons. It is no exaggeration to say that Langheimer has spent fifty years of his life within prison walls. When he left to-day he had $15 of his own money, besides the $5 allowed each liberated convict by the state. As he departed one of the prison officials remarked: "I'll bet he will be back here before two months are gone. He can't help stealing. Mark what I say, he will soon be back."

A Letter From Frank James.

Chicago, May 4.—A sister of the James brothers lives in Georgia. The following letter, purporting to come from Frank James, in that state, was received at the Times to-day:

NEAR CALHOUN, GA., April 22, 1882.

I see you have a communication denying that it was my brother killed by Bob Ford. It was certainly Jesse that was killed, or rather murdered. I also see in the Atlanta Constitution a pretended letter from me, dated Memphis, Tenn., which is a forgery. I have been here for the last month, and will leave here before you receive this, and have no threats to make, as this is not characteristic of our family. But we never forget our friends or forgive our enemies. Please publish this, and return my heartfelt thanks to all those who were so kind to my mother and brother's family in their late distress. Yours truly, FRANK JAMES.

The nomination of Lewis F. Backner, to be collector of internal Revenue at Louisville, is still pending in the Senate. Action has been delayed at the request of Senator Sherman, who has made the charge that the present incumbent was removed because he supported Sherman for President. It is believed Backner will be confirmed in spite of the opposition of Senator Sherman.

The committee empowered to arrange for calling a convention to nominate a candidate for Judge of the Superior Court of this district, met at Lexington on the 10th inst. They decided that primaries should be held in the various counties on Saturday, June 3rd, to appoint delegates to a nominating convention to be held at Lexington, on Wednesday, June 14th. The delegate vote will be one for every two hundred of the popular vote.

SOME of the leading brewers in the present congress in Washington City are urging the adoption of a resolution recommending to all Germans throughout the United States opposition to the candidates, in every election, of any party which advocates sumptuary legislation. They say that such a resolution will be officially promulgated before congress adjourns, and they believe that in Ohio, at least, it will bring about the repeal of the offensive sumptuary laws.

Guiteau's Daily Life.

He rises not later than halfpast six o'clock. His breakfast is brought in about eight o'clock. The usual bill of fare is three eggs, six or eight pieces of toast, a piece of beefsteak from one-half to three-quarters of a pound, fried potatoes and coffee. This is cooked in the kitchen. He has an arrangement with the cooks by which he pays for his coffee, for he says he don't like the taste of the Rio coffee supplied to the prisoners, and also for a portion of the other articles and for their cooking. After breakfast he cleans up his cell, puts his books in order, reads a little, and embraces the privilege of exercising in the corridors for an hour. Returning to his cell, he takes up his Bible and reads for some time, perhaps receiving a visitor or two, for when he returns to his cell he is locked in again. About ten o'clock his dinner is brought to him, and this is a repetition of his breakfast, except that sometimes a variation is made in the style of cooking. During the day he also eats several apples, or oranges. After this he tofore he has spent the time in receiving visitors, but as these have been cut off, he hardly knows how to spend his time after his hour's exercise. About three o'clock he lies down. Whenever the guards make their rounds he raises his head. His daily food is from one and a half to two pounds of beef, nine eggs, fifteen to eighteen slices of bread, besides fried potatoes, coffee and fruit.

PILES! PILES! PILES!

A Sure Cure Found at Last—No One Need Suffer!

A sure cure for blind, bleeding, itching and ulcerated piles has been discovered by Dr. Williams' (an Indian remedy) called Dr. Williams' Indian Ointment. Lotions, instruments and electricities do more harm than good. Williams' Ointment absorbs the tumors, allays the intense itching, (particularly at night after getting warm in bed,) acts as a poultice, gives instant and painless relief, and is prepared only for piles, itching of the private parts, and nothing else.

Read what the Hon. J. M. Coffinberry, of Cleveland, says about Dr. Williams' Pile Ointment: "I have used scores of pile cures, and it affords me pleasure to say that I have never found anything which gave me such immediate and permanent relief as Dr. Williams' Indian Ointment."

The Jail Committee's Report.

The committee on the new jail has made the following report to the Court of Claims:

Your committee would report that a jail suited to the present and future wants of Mason county, and constructed of the finest material—chrome steel—with all modern improvements, together with a residence for the jailer can be constructed for the sum of $39,000; any increase of cost above that amount would be only to increase the size of the jail, or add to the finish of the dwelling, and would be of no practical benefit.

A wall around the jail, in order to include ground enough for a work house, would cost about $2,000, and it is very essential that room to work the prisoners be included in the construction of the jail. A jail constructed at a less cost than $3,000, would lack in some of the requisites of a first class jail and not be a structure that our citizens could be proud of. Suitable ground can be purchased at a cost of about $8,000 and the old jail and residence can be sold at about $3,000—perhaps more. Your committee unanimously decide, that the old jail cannot be suitably repaired, and that it is not suitable for the location of a new jail. No adequate provision could be made for working prisoners upon the old site, and the cost of the construction of a sewer, and the rent of some suitable place in which to keep our prisoners during the erection of a new jail, would equal the additional cost of a new site.

The feeling of the great mass of the tax-payers, is that a large, commodious and first class jail and residence be erected even if it should take $50,000 and your committee has seen that upon all sides, to recommend the erection of a jail and residence, that would be ample for the present and future wants of the county.

The jail and residence, erected at Winchester, Ind., by Edgar J. Hodgson, of Indianapolis, is the only one the committee has seen that it could unanimously recommend to your honorable body, as possessing in the highest degree, all the qualities, essential to make a jail perfectly safe, healthful, cleanly and commodious—and the committee, as per instructions, do recommend Edgar J. Hodgson, as a suitable architect, and believe, that if your honorable body, will have constructed, a jail and residence for the jailer, similar in finish and design to the one at Winchester, Ind., but without the mansard roof, it will give universal satisfaction, and be such a structure as we can be proud of.

The lot of Dennis McGregor is the most suitable for such buildings as we recommend, and gives ample room for working the prisoners.

Respectfully submitted,

G. S. WALL,
JOHN L. WHITAKER,
JOSUA B. BURGESS,
J. W. TILTON,

Ella G. Allen and husband to Alfred B. McAttee, 53 acres, 1 rood and 16 poles of land on Lee's creek; consideration, $5,200.

Lizzie Venable and husband to Lawson Coleman, 1 lot in Maysville, Ky.; consideration, $25.

Lawson Coleman to Alvin Green, lot in city of Maysville, Ky.; consideration, $35.

John H. Worthington and wife to Joel Laytham, 20 1/2 acres of land near Mayslick; consideration, $1,821.50.

James Gault and wife to John F. and E. R. Caldwell, 87 1/2 acres of land near Maysville; consideration, $8,725.

Elizabeth Barr to Elizabeth M. Perkins, lot 3 x 165 feet on Third street, fifth ward, Maysville, Ky.; consideration, $750.

Drowned While Seining.

Lewis Hughes, a colored man, was drowned at Lowell, near the iron bridge, last Wednesday. He was seining with a party of several other persons and was on the bank of the stream with one end of the seine in his hand, and losing his footing fell into the creek, and becoming entangled in the seine was drowned. Neither his body nor the seine has been recovered. He was in the service of Mr. Roger Owens, and was a worthy citizen. A wife and three children survive him.

BURGESS & NELIN are selling full standard, good style prints at five cents a yard. Put this in your pipe and smoke it.

The Portsmouth Tribune says:

Capt. J. C. Agnew, after having met with such a cordial welcome and liberal trade all along the river, has concluded to extend the trips of the Return to Maysville in a few days.

The fine black trotting horse Doble, owned by J. R. Pierson, of Chillicothe, dropped dead while being exercised last week. The animal was valued at $2,500.

The Ashland Independent says:

The Court of Appeals has had the case of Craft and Neal before them one month, and still no decision. It is the opinion of good lawyers that this delay means the sentence against them will be confirmed, and if they intended to reverse it, they would have done so long ago.

PERSONALS.

Points About People Here and Elsewhere.

Mr. M. J. O'Neil, of Manchester, called to see the BULLETIN to-day.

A curious sight was witnessed near the railroad bridge on Thursday; several hundred snakes, some of them three feet long, and thousand of black spiders made their appearance just after the rain. The boys were engaged for several hours killing them. Where they came from is a mystery. There must be a snake and spider nursery somewhere in the neighborhood.

The Ohio and Scotia left Cincinnati at the same time last Monday, and raced to Portsmouth. The Ohio made eighteen landings and passed the Scotia twice, the latter boat only making five or six landings. Friday before, the Katie Stockdale left the wharf two hundred yards ahead of the Ohio, but before they reached Sciotoville the Ohio was four hundred yards ahead of the Stockdale. The Ohio has beaten every sternwheeler on the river but the Pittsburg.

ED. BULLETIN: I think our distillers are treated very harsh, and that is not all, for we are driving away a profitable business from our city and its suburbs. It is wrong to let anything go to waste which could be used for a good purpose. The feeling of cattle has been the means of circulating many dollars that our storekeepers and newspapers have got and could get, but the available has walked off on four feet and we will have to get along with several dollars less and have a monstrous waste. I have smelt a far more disagreeable stink than them cattle nearer home, but spite will soon make a mole-hill a mountain and we should have more forbearance.

THE GIANT'S HOME.

Where Captain and Mrs. Bates Find Plenty of Room.

(N.Y. Sun.)

Captain and Mrs. Bates, the giant couple, are, in a certain sense, the most prominent people in Ohio. They are pretty sure to be prominent wherever they are. The Captain once went in bathing off the Jersey coast, and he says the fishermen put out in boats to harpoon him, because they thought he was a whale. But this may be a fish story. They certainly form the highest geographical points in the neighborhood of their home in Seville, Ohio. Mrs. Bates is a trifle the higher, but, as height is a touchy point with giants, she, out of delicate feeling for the Captain, rarely refers to this fact, or else attributes it to her coiffure. Their home at Seville is the place for which they long when they are on their travels. It is not surprising that persons nearly eight feet tall, and broad in proportion, do not find a berth in a sleeping car conveniently roomy or feel quite safe at table d'hôte on cane bottom chairs. Therefore it is that their spirits rise when homeward bound. As they pass through the door of the railroad car at their home station they stoop for the last time before they again go traveling. A coach drawn by eight stout Norman horses is in waiting. It is about as broad as the roadway, and the wheels are about as large as those on the ponderous wagons used to haul granite or marble shafts. When they are comfortably seated the coachman cracks his whip, and the vehicle goes lumbering along toward the giants' house, a little way out of the town. Other drivers on the road, seeing the giants' equipage coming, take down the fence rails and drive into the adjoining fields until the enormous vehicle has passed.

An immense stone building looms up, and soon the carriage is pulled up in front of the entrance. If an ordinary-sized person is with the giants they kindly give him a booster or two up the steps. Then they pass stately and erect through a hall ten feet high. The head of a person of medium height would about reach to the door knob. They enter a spacious hall, and go from there to a parlor with doors also ten feet high, and windows in proportion. The chairs are so large that ordinary mortals have to climb into them as babies have to climb into their high chairs. In the sitting room the piano is the only piece of furniture of ordinary size; but it is mounted on blocks about three feet high, so that the key board is up in the air. Thus the giant couple manage to escape annoyance from visitors with musical proclivities. In this room are two huge rocking chairs. In one of them the Capt. deposits his 478 pounds, and placidly contemplates his wife sewing the seams of many yards of silk for a new dress with regulation train. On the table is a large album containing photographs of hundreds of fellow curiosities—bearded women, two-headed and four-legged women, giants, dwarfs, living skeletons, and the like, all of whom the couple know intimately. Next to this room, in which they take their meals is their bedroom. The bedroom, which is the smallest of the rooms, contains a bed ten feet long, and broad in proportion. There is also a bureau, with a glass as large as the wall of an ordinary room. All the furniture is of mahogany and highly finished, the giants haying spared no expense. Visitors' quarters are up stairs, where the rooms and furniture are of ordinary size, as is also the dinner service, for the giants are not large eaters. The farm comprises 160 acres of cultivated land, and the Captain takes great pleasure in busying himself around the place. He is respected in the neighborhood, and noted for his courtesy and hospitality.

A youth to fortune and to fame unknown sends Dumas the manuscript of a new play, asking the great dramatist to become his collaborateur. Dumas is for a moment petrified, then seizes his pen and replies: "How dare you, sir, propose to yoke together a horse and an ass?" The author, by return of post: "How dare you, sir, call me a horse?" Dumas by next mail: "Send me your play, my young friend!"

BATCHELDER'S

Ventilated Egg Case.

Patented February 15, 1881.

Indispensable to Merchants Shippers And Producers.

The outside frame of this carrier contains five trays, held in place by fasteners at end of case, as seen in cut. These trays are constructed in reversible halves. The above cut shows one whole tray filled ready to be placed in case, each egg resting in its cardboard socket in such a manner as to be readily counted, candled, or transferred from tray to tray, or case to case, without rehandling. For cold storage this case will store 60 dozen with racks made to receive the half trays, hence this is the cheapest storage case manufactured, saving largely in space. The manner of holding the eggs on end prevents oscillation, adding, or breakage, and adds greatly to their freshness when carried long in storage. Size of 30 dozen No. 1 cases 25x12x14, weighs 20 pounds.
